NOTES IN SEASON.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have prepared for this holiday season a series of Thin Paper Classics, printed in readable type on a thin, but opaque paper, and attractively bound in flexible leather that has proved an instant success. The series includes the best works of the most popular writers, such as "Adam Bede," "Ivanhoe," "Jane Eyre," "Lorna Doone," "Marble Faun," "Notre Dame," and a dozen others. The publishers request orders by telegraph at their own expense from booksellers who may be in immediate need of this series.

JOHN LANE COMPANY publish a new book by Vernon Lee, entitled "The Spirit of Rome," in which she writes in her characteristic style of the many treasures and points of interest in the Holy City; "The Story of the Princess des Ursins in Spain," by Constance Hill, a romantic story of the mistress of the Queen's Household in the new Bourbon Court of Madrid, to which the Princess des Ursins was appointed by Louis XIV., with illustrations from old paintings; also, "Last Poems—translations from the Book of Indian Love," a posthumous volume of verse by "Laurence Hope," the wife of Lieutenant-General Malcolm Nicolson, who died a year ago.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have just brought out "The Memories of Rose Eytinge," who was for years connected with Wallack's, the Union Square and Daly's theatres in New York, and who knew and played with nearly all the greater lights in this country and in England. She travelled much and lived in various parts of America, Europe and Africa—the latter in Alexandria and Cairo, as the wife of the U. S. Consul-General to that country—and her book, besides her recollections of the stage, is also full of interesting reminiscences of countries and people. They have also just ready "The Heart of Lady Anne," a new novel by Agnes and Egerton Castle, full of the spirit of old-time English comedy and beautifully illustrated in color by Ethel Franklin Betts and decorations by Frederick Garrison Hall.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just brought out "The Life of Froude," by Herbert Paul, one of the most important biographies of the year. Warned, perhaps, by the unfortunate experience of Froude himself in publishing the biography of his old friend Carlyle, his family at first opposed all attempts to write a biography of their father, and actually destroyed a large number of Froude's letters after his death. Mr. Paul, however, overcame the obstacles and obtained permission from Miss Margaret Froude to use such written material as existed, besides obtaining from her such facts, dates and papers as were essential to the accuracy of his narrative. Besides this valuable material, Mr. Paul also was permitted to use the letters of Froude to the late Countess of Derby, and obtained assistance from Sir Thomas Sanderson, Lord Derby's executor; from Cardinal Newman's literary representative, Edward Bellasis; Arthur Clough, son of Froude's early friend; from James Rye, of Balliol, who made a careful examination into the charges made against Froude by Professor Freeman, and others of equal importance. The result has been an octavo volume of upwards of 450 pages, covering the subject authoritatively from Froude's childhood till his death in a style that holds the attention of the reader from cover to cover.

Another of the author's love tales of the time of the Georges, picturing the gay life of London, its gaming, its routs, its intrigues, its artificialities. Lady Anne, "French Nan," as she is called, is married in haste to an English country squire, with whom she finds life a very dull affair. Yet after her various tantrums, she is surprised by her husband's willing consent to her visiting in London her friend Kitty Bellairs, now the Lady Kilcrouney. How the rebellious wife disports herself in society, how she and Kitty fall out, how the country husband resorts to subterfuge to win back his errant wife, is told in true comedy style.

The first volume follows the history of Venice through the 15th century; the second brings it up to the present time. This is neither a guide book nor a dry history; but Mr. Crawford has given us "a novelist's treatment of a novelistic place," exercising his powers of imagination while not departing from the lines of truth. Such subjects as The last magistrates, The last great ladies, The last Doges, Manners and customs of the Venetians, etc., are separately treated. Ibsen has often expressed his intention of writing his autobiography, but has been stricken by illness before accomplishing it. This collection of letters, it is thought, will in many respects take the place of the contemplated arts biography. Extending over a period of more than fifty years, the letters provide us with a direct presentment of the man during the changing conditions of his life and his friendships, and contain much of both biographical and literary interest that has never before been made public.

By the Professor of Pedagogy and Assistant in Psychology, Northern Illinois State Normal School. He believes that "efficiency in teaching is the outcome of persistent effort based on progressive insight into the nature of the processes involved." The book, therefore, deals with the concrete processes and problems with which every teacher is familiar, working from this material by analysis, description and argument to educational principles, and introducing in simple form the fundamental psychological truths on which knowledge is based. Emphasis is also laid upon education as a concrete social process.

Camden, S. C., is one of the oldest towns in this country, having been laid out according to an act of the Council of George II. in 1734 as the township of Fredericksburg, later known as Camden. This history, prepared from local records and documents in the state archives at Columbia and Charleston, traces the development of Camden and its vicinity from earliest days. The first volume is devoted to the Colonial and Revolutionary periods, and shows the important part this community played in national affairs. It has been the home of men who have figured largely in the political life of state and nation. Vol. 2 will continue the record through the 19th century.

Tells the story of the first great heroic period of the West. At the same time that the early explorers of New France were pressing from the east, westward, a tide of adventure had set across Siberia and the Pacific, eastward. Eventually these two tides met and coalesced in the great fur trade that won the West. The first part of the book deals with the Russians on the Pacific coast; next the American and English adventurers are considered, while the concluding chapters treat of the Russian-American Fur Company. For obvious reasons the Spaniards of the Southwest have not been included.

THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL'S REPORT.

It may seem disappointing to many friends of postal progress that the new Postmaster-General has presented a report which gives more emphasis perhaps to reform within the service than to improvements that would be more directly felt by the public. But it is to be remembered that housecleaning is a first necessity in the Department, and that the new Postmaster-General is a business executive who means to have old things right before he ventures on new things. It is, therefore, scarcely to be regretted that he postpones for further consideration a number of questions, such especially as a Postal Telegraph and Postal Savings Bank, which, though much discussed, are not of immediate necessity.

The Postmaster-General, in fact, states that he is less concerned with a seeming deficit than in getting and giving value in the postal service. He points out that the deficit, though increasingly large, is proportionately less than the amount of matter carried free, and he recommends that the Government departments be charged with their own postal expenses, as is the case in England, and that the use of penalty envelopes and the franking privilege be curtailed, if not abolished. It cannot be assumed that the deficit would be entirely overcome by charging postage on free matter, for not so much free matter would be sent; but some such provision would be an important step in reform and should be heartily supported by the press and the public.

In regard to second-class matter the Postmaster-General and Third Assistant Postmaster-General point out that considerable saving has been effected by excluding books published as periodicals from second-class bulk rates, and urge strongly that there be new legislation entirely revising classification on the simplest possible method, which would do away with the present difficult and ridiculous definitions and limitations connected with the bulk rate. It is probably a fallacy to assume that second-class matter costs the Government five cents a pound, or anything like the average rate, because the conditions of handling are so much simpler—but bold reform in this direction is none the less needed. The recommendations of the reports are for a simple division into first-class, covering letters, postal cards, postcards and sealed material, second-class, covering newspapers and periodicals, and third-class, covering merchandise and other material—the last at a rate of one cent for two ounces instead of the present rate of one cent for each ounce.

The Postmaster-General refers to the new money order system which will go into effect with the new year, but this is also rather an improvement in method of administration than in public convenience. The question of a postal note or its equivalent is discussed at length by the First Assistant Postmaster-General, and the suggestion of a commission to make recommendations to Congress should be heartily seconded. In respect to rural free delivery, which is the great postal advance of the past decade, the Postmaster-General suggests curtailment on one side to make possible development on the other, but he makes no suggestions as to recent methods which will bring about "the full wagon" and thus reduce proportionately the cost of rural routes while increasing their facilities.

The Postmaster-General may be trusted to give during the ensuing year careful study to possible improvements as well as needed reform, and his second Annual Report will doubtless be more positively an advance than his first could possibly be made.

BOOKS IN DEMAND IN ENGLAND.

ACCORDING to the London Book Monthly the following books have sold best in England during November:

The Lake, by George Moore.

The Irrational Knot, by G. Bernard Shaw.

The Princess Priscilla's Fortnight, by the author of "Elizabeth and her German Garden."

The Man from America, by Mrs. Henry de la Pasture.

The Cherry Riband, by S. R. Crockett.

Baby Bullet, by Lloyd Osbourne.

Mrs. Brookfield and Her Circle.

THE WORK OF THE POST-OFFICE.

POSTMASTER-GENERAL GEORGE B. CORTELYOU in introducing his report for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1905, points out that he has restricted himself strictly to a consideration of those having the most immediate and practical interest.

Beginning with the financial condition of the department, the Postmaster-General points out that the total receipts from all sources in 1905 were $152,826,585.10 and the total expenditures $167,399,169.23, leaving a deficit of $14,572,584.13, that is, an increase in the deficit of $5,793,094.77.

The Postmaster-General, however, states that the deficit, though increasingly large, is proportionately less than the amount of matter carried free.

PARCELS POST.

The establishing of a domestic parcels post in this country where distances are so great and a uniform rate of postage is so firmly established as a sound principle of postal administration, he thought would probably involve either a high rate of postage or a temporary deficit in the effort to compete with the several express companies organized for handling parcels under the zone system, charging in proportion to distance carried. He does not therefore deem it wise to ask authority of Congress for the establishment of a separate parcels post in the domestic service, but makes an earnest recommendation that third and fourth class mail matter be merged at the rate of 1 cent for 2 ounces.

As to foreign parcels post, twenty-eight conventions were in operation at the close of the fiscal year 1905, between this and other countries, six of them being in the Eastern Hemisphere. Parcels exchanged with countries in the Western Hemisphere may weigh up to 11 pounds (5 kilograms) and are not limited as to value; but parcels exchanged with countries in the Eastern Hemisphere must not weigh more than 4 pounds 6 ounces each (2 kilograms) nor exceed $50 in value.

NEW FORM OF MONEY ORDER.

On January 28, 1905, the Postmaster-General appointed a commission to devise a new money-order blank that would prevent, as far as possible, the altering or raising of money orders. After a thorough investigation of the subject, the commission, which was composed of the purchasing agent, the superintendent of the division of money orders, and the chief inspector, on August 8, 1905, submitted a report recommending a form of order which it is believed will do away with many of the objections that have been urged against the old form. The principal features of the new order are the "safety paper" upon which it is printed, the use of the marginal check, and the insertion in the body of the order of the name of the remitter and the address of the payee. Changes have been made in the form of money-order advice to correspond with those in the order. The new blanks are being issued to postmasters as fast as their supplies of the old blanks are exhausted.

A communication from First Assistant

Postmaster-General F. H. Hitchcock is quoted regarding a postal note as a convenient means of transmitting small sums through the mails. Mr. Hitchcock reviews the history of the postal-note business and suggests the appointment of a competent committee to consider and report upon the advisability of recommending to Congress the enactment of legislation on this subject.

FRANKING AND SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

As to "Government free" matter, now carried under the franks of members of Congress, and the handling of second-class mail matter, the Postmaster-General concurs with the recommendation of the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, whose report is given below. In closing his remarks on second-class matter Mr. Cortelyou says: "I do not venture to suggest the rate of postage to be charged upon printed matter as a class, or upon any divisions thereof which may be decided upon, but it is hoped that there be no delay in bringing about less complicated conditions of classification. In connection with this subject I am prompted to say that, aside from the first class of mail matter (letters, postal cards, and post cards), the whole scheme of mail classification is sorely in need of revision in order to place the mail service of the country on a businesslike basis."

In summing up his report the Postmaster-General says: "There are two prime requisites to a successful administration of the postal service. First. Merit as a controlling factor in appointment and promotion. Second. Business efficiency in the broadest sense, and this, of course, includes proper economy. With these requisites in view there can be far-reaching improvement in the following directions: A stricter adherence to the rule that postmasters shall be appointed primarily on a basis of fitness; a more precise method of determining the compensation to be paid to railroads and other agencies for the transportation of the mails; a more thorough organization of the rural free delivery service and a closer inspection of it, which, while insuring every needed extension, shall prevent the giving of these facilities where they are not warranted; a simpler classification of mail matter, as follows: First, letters; second, printed matter; third, merchandise; and a more stringent restriction of the franking privilege."

REPORT OF THIRD ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

Third Assistant Postmaster-General Edwin C. Madden, referring to order 875, dated July 26, 1900, with regard to postage rates on newspapers and periodicals, reports that great confusion resulted from that order. There was also much loss of revenue due to the interpretation and effect of it. Conditions are the same and complications are increasing, but I anticipate that before long the whole matter will be adjusted.

THE FRANKING AND PENALTY PRIVILEGES.

The franking and penalty privileges are, by reason of their nature, subject to abuses, a precise and accurate description of which is not possible at the present time; but in view of experience already had I feel impelled to say that the interests of the Government and of this Department would be best subserved if those two privileges were abolished altogether, and if it were required, as was formerly the case, that all mail matter be prepaid at the regular postage rates. The effect of this would be that the various departments of the Government would be required to place postage stamps upon their mail matter, or to purchase stamped envelopes. This change alone would have created additional revenue enough within the past year to have obliterated the deficit in the postal revenue and left a surplus over expenditures of several millions.

SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

In the book abuse alone reports from the post-offices at New York and Chicago, which are the only ones so far received, show that the reform has resulted in the elimination from the second class of approximately 4,000,000 pounds a year at those two offices. As the cost of handling this matter is estimated at between 5 and 8 cents a pound, as against the 1 cent a pound formerly received as postage, the saving upon so much of this matter as is no longer sent in the mails is itself not inconsiderable. Upon that portion which may now be sent in the mails the third-class rate is required, which is 1 cent for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof, or not less than 8 cents a pound where the package is of even weight. This is 7 cents a pound more than was formerly required. In other respects the reform of the abuses of this privilege at New York alone has resulted in the elimination from the second class of approximately 16,000,000 pounds of matter. Data will be secured later to show more fully what has been accomplished generally and the effect. It is too early yet for such an inquiry.

The point has been reached, however, in the administration of this subject and the conduct of this reform where I feel it my duty to say that the interests of all concerned—the public, the publishers, and the Government—will be best served by a repeal of the act of March 3, 1879, and the enactment in lieu thereof of a law which will establish this class of mail matter upon simpler and less ideal distinctions. The present statute requires altogether too much interpretation, too much regulation, and the exercise of too much executive discretion. The rate of postage for mere mail service should not depend upon such complicated questions as to require experts to determine what comes within and what does not come within the law. Indeed, a new law is sorely needed. The present act is woefully out of date. A uniformly correct administration of it is a matter of exceeding difficulty.

A great number of collateral questions arising in almost every case are necessary to be decided before the mere question of rates can be settled; and even after the admission of a newspaper or periodical to the second class, proper conditions having been established, it is possible within the shortest space of time for a publisher to so change the character of his publication that it becomes an abuse. Once in, it cannot be reached and rejected promptly enough to save the Government from serious loss because of carrying at a cent a pound, or free, matter subject, when the facts are ascertained, to at least 8 cents a pound.

MAIL CLASSIFICATION.

As to mail classification laws, Mr. Madden urges for submission to Congress the question of a thorough revision of all laws in relation to the classification of mail matter except that of the first class.

The matter of classifying the mails Mr. Madden claims should be so simple that any postmaster, or any other person, ought to be able to determine the rate accurately and beyond doubt. There should be no necessity for a postmaster, when matter is presented for mailing, to submit the question to the Department for the consideration of experts in order to determine what rate should be charged, as is now so often necessary under our complicated classification system.

SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATIONS.

In concluding his report Mr. Madden summarizes his recommendations as follows:

I. That Congress be asked to enact a provision making an exception of the purchase of stamped paper from the prohibition against expending money in excess of appropriations for supplies. (Deficiency act, Mar. 3, 1905.)

II. That existing law which provides a penalty for the making of false returns of business by postmasters be so amended as to penalize such acts of postmasters and others as implicate them in the willful diversion of mail matter from one post-office to another for the purpose of improperly increasing the compensation of any postmaster or securing allowances for any post-office, or both. (Act of June 17, 1878; see sec. 1578, P. L. and R.)

III. That Congress be asked to enact a provision prohibiting the use upon matter distributed from house to house by private persons, outside the mails, of the distinguishing marks required by the Postal Laws and Regulations upon matter which is mailed without stamps affixed, under the provisions of the act of April 28, 1904.

IV. That Congress be asked to enact a provision which will permit postmasters, under the direction of the Postmaster-General, to deposit Government moneys at their own risk and in their official capacity in any bank in the town, city, or county in which their post-offices are located, or in any adjacent county within reasonable radii of their post-offices, even though in another State, if in said town, city, or county, or within said reasonable radii, there is no designated depository of the United States.

V. That Congress be asked to enact that the penalty and franking privileges, or at least the latter, be abolished, and that appropriations be made for the postage expenses of the members of Congress and of the several Departments, or at least the latter.

VI. That Congress be asked to enact similar provisions for the classification of all mail matter and to subdivide all mail matter into three classes, the first class to consist of letters, postal cards and post cards, and all matter sealed against inspection; the second class to consist of all printed matter, with special provision for the treatment of, and a special rate for, newspapers and periodicals; the third class to consist of all matter not included in the first two; the rate of postage for each class and the subdivisions of the second class to be determined after a consideration of the cost of the service rendered and the necessities for revenue.

VII. That Congress be asked to enact, in the event of the failure of the next preceding recommendation, that the third and fourth classes of mail be consolidated.

IN HONOR OF FRANKLIN'S 200TH BIRTHDAY.

THE PENNSYLVANIA SOCIETY, on the evening of December 12, gave a dinner to commemorate the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, although the actual date is January 17, 1906. J. Hampden Robb, president of the society, presided at the dinner. The speakers were Postmaster-General Cortelyou, who spoke on "Franklin, the Postmaster-General;" General Horace Porter, on "Franklin, the Diplomat;" Frederick P. Fish, of Boston, on "Franklin, the Scientist," and Professor Albert H. Smyth, of Central High School, of Philadelphia, and editor of a new edition of Franklin's writings, on "Franklin, the Man of Letters," and George A. Post, on "Franklin, the American."

Exercises began with a procession of flags into the Astor Gallery, which was used as a place of assembly. The dinner having a colonial character, the flags were preceded by a fife and a drummer in colonial costume. The first flag was a provincial flag of Pennsylvania, designed by Benjamin Franklin. The flags were employed again in a procession of guests of honor as they moved into the dinner hall.

Souvenirs of the dinner consisted of a Franklin plate, decorated with a portrait of the philosopher, the border containing the seal of the society, the arms of Franklin and arms of the States of New York and Pennsylvania. A portrait of Franklin, engraved in steel for the society by Samuel Collyer, was a feature of the menu.

Mr. Cortelyou, in his address, told how in 1737 Franklin had been appointed Postmaster of Philadelphia, his wife assisting him in his duties. In 1753 he became Deputy Postmaster-General of the Colonies, he and his associates having a salary between them of £600, "if they could get it," as Franklin expressed it. When Postmaster-General he made his brother John postmaster in Boston and his brother Peter postmaster in Philadelphia. When the brothers died he assisted the two widows, establishing one in the printing business and continuing the other as postmistress, thus making her, so far as is known, the first woman to hold public office in America. He was removed from his position in 1774 because of his active sympathies with the colonists.

OBITUARY NOTES.

PAUL MEURICE, the French author and dramatist, died in Paris, December 11, aged eighty-five. Meurice is chiefly noted for his literary connection with Victor Hugo's family, having helped to edit L'Événement in 1848, and at the end of the Second Empire in editing Hugo's organ, Le Rappel. He was appointed literary executor of Victor Hugo, with Auguste Vacquerie, and brought out the forty-six volume edition of Hugo's works. His chief literary merit was his effort to introduce Shakespeare, as seen through romantic glasses, to the French. He was the adapter of the version of "Hamlet" which the Comédie Française presents, as well as of other plays, and also brought out an "Antigone," after Sophocles, that still holds the stage.

COLONEL SAMUEL ADAMS DRAKE, the historian, died at Kennebunkport, Me., December 4. Colonel Drake was born in Boston, in December, 1833, the son of Samuel G. Drake, a well-known author and publisher. He served in the war between the States with the First Regiment of Kansas Infantry, and was engaged in military operations in Kansas and Missouri. He wrote twenty-three books mostly relating to historic events in New England and the Middle West, among which are "Old Landmarks of Boston," "The Making of the Great West," "The Making of Virginia," "Our Colonial Homes," "On Plymouth Rock," "The Myths and Fables of To-day," etc. For twenty years he had labored on, but not completed, a history of the United States which his father began.

SIR RICHARD CLAVERHOUSE JEBB, Regius professor of Greek at Cambridge University, died on December 9. Professor Jebb was born at Dundee, August 27, 1841, and was graduated from Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1862. He became a fellow and lecturer in his alma mater in 1863. In 1871 he became governor of the Charterhouse school, and the next year became a classical examiner in the University of London, and was also appointed tutor in Trinity College. These posts he resigned in 1875 to accept the chair of Greek in the University of Glasgow. This place he held with increasing distinction until 1889, when he was elected Regius professor of Greek at Cambridge University, a post he held until his death. He was an authority in Greek, and wrote and edited many volumes on his favorite subject, among them being a complete edition of Sophocles, with notes, in eight volumes; "The Characters of Theophrastus," "Attic Orators," "Richard Bentley," "Homer," "Modern Greece," "Lectures on Greek Poetry" and "Humanism in Education." His Johns Hopkins lectures, delivered in 1892, were published under the title "The Growth and Influence of Classical Greek Poetry." He was knighted in 1900.

EDWARD ATKINSON, the social and political reformer and publicist, died suddenly on way to his office, on December 11, in Boston, aged seventy-eight. Mr. Atkinson was born in Brookline, Mass., February 10, 1827. He was brought up in the commission business, and from 1848 to 1877 was connected as clerk and manager with several manufacturing concerns. He was subsequently made president of the Boston Manufacturers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company, which he helped to establish. But long before that time he had gained public recognition as an effective speaker upon economic questions, especially in connection with financial and transportation matters, and as a most industrious pamphleteer. The matters treated in his voluminous writings include banking, cotton manufacture, free trade and protection, and the mechanical arts. His published works include "Cheap Cotton by Free Labor," "The Collection of Revenue," "Argument for the Conditional Reform of the Legal Tender Act," "Our National Domain," "Labor and Capital—Allies, Not Enemies," "The Fire Engineer, the Architect, and the Underwriter," "The Railroads of the United States," "Cotton Manufacturers of the United States," "What is a Bank?" "Right Methods of Preventing Fires in Mills," "The Railway and the Farmer," "The Influence of Boston Capital Upon Manufacturers," "The Distribution of Products," etc. He also published a series of monographs on economic questions in various periodicals and numerous addresses on different subjects.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Moody's Magazine is the title of a new monthly review for investors, bankers and men of affairs, the first issue of which has just been published by the Moody Corporation, 35 Nassau Street, New York. The issue contains critical comments on current events by the editor, Byron W. Holt; a symposium on the increasing supply of gold, by Horace White, Professors John B. Clark and Irving Fisher, John De Witt Warner and others; original articles, correspondence and book reviews.

New Shakespeariana for January, 1906, will contain verbatim the complaint, answer and decree in the chancery suit brought by Shakespeare and others, April 26, 1615, recently discovered by Professor Charles William Wallace, of the University of Nebraska, while searching in the public records office in London, where they had lain unsuspected for almost three hundred years. There is also an interesting paper, "What Actors Have Done for Shakespearean Biography," besides the usual features. Three more portraits of Shakespeare, the Dugdale, Roubilliac and Fournier, are printed and described, together with five newly discovered documents proving that Shakespeare never visited Scotland.

The Gentleman's Magazine was started in 1731, not 1729, as inadvertently stated in our issue for December 2. Edward Cave, the founder of the magazine, was succeeded by David Henry and Richard Cave, who were in turn succeeded by Newberry, whose name first appears on the magazine in 1767. John Nichols and others. New series followed new series, the antiquarian matter growing ever more and more in bulk, until a change came in the early sixties of the nineteenth century, when Chapman & Hall became its publishers, and popular writers like Dutton Cook appeared in its columns, and Henry Kingsley contributed, as a serial story, "Maiden Mathilde." In 1868 it came under the editorship of Gowing, who was followed in time by Joseph Hatton and Joseph Knight.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE "Catalogo Generale della Libreria Italiana dall' Anno 1847 a tutto il 1899," compiled by Professor Attilio Pagliaini, librarian of the Genoa University, has just been completed. The first part appeared in October, 1900, and the last part was published last month. The work forms three large octavo volumes of 2595 pages, and records about a quarter of a million titles or editions. Each entry gives, in exceedingly small but clear type, and in a severely condensed form, the name of author, title of work, size, number of pages and price. The editor of the work did not confine himself to Italian books issued in Italy, but has also included all books of which he could find trace that were printed in Italian in other countries. The book fills a decided gap in bibliographical reference works and deserves recognition everywhere. The work is published by Ulrico Hoepli for the Associazione Tipografico-Libreria Italiana of Milan.

KARSLAKE & Co., London, have brought out in book form the second volume of their "Book-Auction Records," formerly known as "Sales Records," a priced and annotated record of London book auctions edited by Frank Karslake. The volume covers the period from October 1, 1904, to September 30, 1905, and contains, according to Mr. Karslake, 15,751 records, in four alphabets, with a comprehensive index to the whole. Besides the records of sales the volume contains an account of the Bodleian Shakespeare, with a reproduction of the cover; Reminiscences of Sotheby's, with a plate; an account of Ludwig Rosenthal, of Munich; a drawing of the house of Aldus in Venice, and notes of interest to booksellers and collectors. Being published quarterly the work of Mr. Karslake is immensely useful to all dealers in second-hand books. In its present shape, a compact twelvemo, bound in cloth, it is unrivalled in its field in England, and forms an indispensable tool in the working library of booksellers, librarians and collectors everywhere. (12+672 p. 12°, cl., £1 1s.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have just printed the 65th thousand of "Rose o' the River," by Kate Douglas Wiggin.

THOMAS WHITTAKER is bringing out for the Rev. Dr. Arthur W. H. Eaton, of Cutler's School, New York City, two volumes of poetry—one secular and the other religious—entitled respectively "Poems for the Christian Year" and "Arcadian Ballads and De Soto's Last Dream."

THE PRINTER'S INK PUBLISHING Co. will publish early in January "Forty Years an Advertising Agent," by George P. Rowell. The work is part of the advertising and newspaper history of the last four decades by one who for that period has been a leader in the field of advertising.

THE Giornale di Italia, of Rome, on the 11th inst., printed a report to the effect that a precious manuscript of Pius VII. had been stolen from the secret archives of the Vatican library. The manuscript includes the record of the Pope's imprisonment at Fontainebleau, which is considered of great importance.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. announce that they have secured the American rights for G. B. Lancaster's novel, "The Bondage of Kin Severne," and will bring it out next year. This author's virile stories in "Sons o' Men" have created a profound impression. They practically open a new field in fiction—New Zealand and the sheep herders of the hills.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just published a new volume by the Rev. James A. B. Scherer, author of "Young Japan" and "Japan To-Day," entitled "The Holy Grail; Round About My Pekin Garden," by Mrs. Archibald Little; volume four of Karl Mantizus's "Theatrical Art;" and a work on "Glue, Gelatine and their Allied Products," by Thomas Lambert.

THOMAS J. KIRKLAND and Robert M. Kennedy, of Camden, S. C., have just brought out the first volume of their "Historic Camden," treating of the Colonial and Revolutionary periods of this old, and, in many respects, unique community, notable especially as the centre of many important events of Revolutionary history and as the home of many men who have figured prominently in the political life of South Carolina and the nation.

J. F. TAYLOR & Co. have in preparation a subscription edition of the complete works of Laurence Sterne, with essays on "Sterne the Man," "Tristram Shandy," "A Sentimental Journey," etc., by Professor W. L. Cross. Besides these, Professor Cross has rearranged the letters and has added to the edition a large amount of new material from manuscripts that have recently become available. He has also annotated Fitzgerald's life of Sterne, which has been added to the edition.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS publish this week a work entitled "Egoism, a study in the social premises of religion," by Louis Wallis, who maintains that "egoism is the only 'force' that propels the social machine." This thesis he then proceeds to demonstrate by evidence drawn from biblical history. The historical criticism of the Bible, the author maintains, must be made in the light of sociology, and therefore requires the cognizance of the basic sociological factor. Lastly he shows practical bearing of this on the present social problems.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have brought out several sets of pictures in colors by Howard Chandler Christy, entitled "Sailing Close," "Excess Baggage," "Canoe Mates" and "The World Before Them," lithographed in eight printings. They have also a charming set of five pictures of children, by Jessie Willcox Smith, entitled "First Steps in a Child's Life; four "Pictures from Longfellow," by W. L. Taylor; and four "Cameo Heads," by C. Allan Gilbert. Their Penfield "Automobile Calendar" and the "Christy Calendar," rich in color, will find many friends.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have added to their large line of artistic calendars and pictures—which already includes upwards of one hundred numbers, both domestic and imported, of all shapes and styles, and at all prices—six particularly attractive numbers, namely, "The Breton Calendar," "The Georgian Calendar" and "The Old Time Calendar," the first one with charming pictures of Breton children and scenes, the second-named one with pictures of people in costumes of the Georgian period, and the third, pictures of people in costumes worn about half a century ago. These three calendars are particularly rich in tone and coloring. "A Calendar of Indoor Girls," "A Calendar of Outdoor Girls" and "A Calendar of Musical Girls" are bright and picture graceful and attractive girls.

THE MAMILLAN COMPANY have just ready "Salve Venetia: Gleanings from History," by F. Marion Crawford; "The Re-Shaping of the Far East," by B. L. Putnam Weale, author of "Manchu and Muscovite;" "The Prophet of Nazareth," by Nathaniel Schmidt; "Model English Prose," by Professor George R. Carpenter; "Captain John Smith," by A. G. Bradley, in the English Men of Action Series; "Peter Paul Rubens," by Hope Rea, in the series of Great Masters in Painting and Sculpture; "J. M. W. Turner," by W. L. Wyllie, A.R.A., in the British Artists Series;

"Essays on Four Plays of Euripides," by Dr. A. W. Verrall; "Conversations with Christ: a biographical study," by the author of "The Faith of a Christian;" "Studies in Architecture," by Reginald Blomfield; also, "Lectures and Essays," by the late Canon Ainger.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in press a book of special interest and timeliness in Jean Jaurès's "Studies in Socialism," which has been translated from the French by Miss Mildred Minturn. M. Jaurès belongs to that group of French statesmen who are arresting public attention by their earnest attempt to apply first principles to politics. They are commanding respect by substituting ethics for tactics, whereas the hommes de gouvernement are engaged in those daily compromises which may be necessary, but are not impressively heroic. That is, according to the English Speaker, "why the personality of M. Jaurès serves at the present moment as the point on which all the political controversy of to-day in France appears to concentrate itself. His socialism is a religion, and he presents the inspiring spectacle of a good man working out his own salvation in the face of innumerable difficulties."

DODD, MEAD & Co. have just ready a sumptuous work on the "Cathedral Cities of England," by George Gilbert, illustrated with sixty drawings by W. W. Collins. The work is as comprehensive as possible. For example, the introductory chapter on architecture from Romanesque to English Renaissance should relieve the reader from turning to books of reference. It gives a brief but wholly sufficient account of this interesting branch of art, showing its introduction and general development in England. It also serves as a glossary to the rest of the book. A chapter is devoted to each cathedral city, dealing with the various vicissitudes of the city and cathedral, architecturally and historically. Any difficulty arising when perusing a chapter, as to the period of time to which any particular style of architecture belongs, can be easily ascertained by turning back to the introductory chapter. The illustrations are facsimiles of admirably executed water colors.

FOX, DUFFIED & COMPANY will publish in January a new novel by Neith Boyce, (Mrs. Hutchins Hapgood,) called "The Eternal Spring." Mrs. Hapgood's first novel, "The Forerunner," was pronounced by a score or more of authoritative critics to be one of the notable books of the year in which it appeared. Her second book was "The Folly of Others," a volume of short stories, one of which, "A Provident Woman," stimulated a good deal of attention and discussion in a modest way. Mrs. Hapgood's husband, himself an author, is a brother of Norman Hapgood, of Collier's Weekly. They have brought out two novel calendars for 1906 in "The Wagner Calendar" and "The St. Francis Calendar." The first has leaves containing in illuminated letters the famous canticle of the sun by St. Francis d'Assisi, and "The Wagner Calendar" is composed of designs illustrative of all the Wagnerian music dramas, with the motif of each, from Rienzi down to Parsifal. Both calendars are the work of Miss Marian C. Bridgman, of Stamford, Conn.

A. S. BARNES & Co. have just ready an India paper edition of Poe's works. This edition, in four dainty volumes, offers some 2000 pages in the compact, convenient and durable form made possible by the use of the beautiful India paper. Although the volumes average about 500 pages, they are only some three-eighths of an inch in thickness. The measurements, six by four inches, indicate the convenience of the edition. Each volume contains frontispieces in tint, facsimiles of letters and introductions. The personal recollections of Poe by Richard Henry Stoddard, a life of Poe by G. Mercer Adams, and a series of contemporary estimates of Poe by Lowell, Willis and Griswold are among the introductory matter of an edition made for readers, and likely to commend itself to those who do not care for excessive annotation, but for the author himself in the most convenient and attractive form. "In the Days of Scott," following "In the Days of Milton," Tudor Jenks's new volume in his popular Lives of Great Writers series, will not be brought out by A. S. Barnes & Co. until after the first of the year.

THE CLUB FOR COLONIAL REPRINTS, Box 1275, Providence, R. I., has just issued its second publication—"Boston in 1682 and 1699, a Trip to New-England, by Edward Ward, and A Letter from New-England by J. W." These two tracts, one of which is so rare that it apparently escaped the notice of the editors of the "Randolph Papers" and of the "Andros Tracts," were both written by ill-wishers to New England. They give a most hostile "character of the country and people, both English and Indians, their customs, manners and religion." "Ned Ward" was the editor of the London Spy, a notorious pamphleteer and tavern keeper. "J. W." was a rabid partisan of Edward Randolph, to whom the New Englanders ascribed most of the misfortunes which culminated in the unhappy rule of Andros. The volume has an introduction by George Parker Winship, of the John Carter Brown Library, in which he touches upon some of the evidence relating to social conditions in Boston at the close of the seventeenth century. The edition is limited to 100 copies. The third publication of the club will be a reprint of the first separate publication of Philip Freneau, said to include poems not in any of the collections of his works.

 In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

 Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

JUST READY

The Second (or Supplementary Volume) of the American Catalog

The second volume of the new "American Catalog, 1900, '01, '02, '03, '04," is now ready for delivery.

The first volume, issued in June last, is a complete record in itself, being a dictionary-catalog of all books recorded between January 1, 1900, and January 1, 1905. In its one alphabet every book is entered at least three times (by author, title and subject), with information as to size, price, publisher, year of issue, etc. It forms the latest addition to the old series of the "American Catalogue," published in quarto form, while the newest volume is an octavo, which is generally conceded to be a much handier shape. We can reasonably affirm that every dealer needs such a permanent catalog in his business, while every library of importance should have this standard bibliographical work on its shelves, since its usefulness in the world of books is on a par with a time-table in the railroad world.

The second, or supplementary volume, contains the full title entries, with annotations, given in the "Weekly Record" of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY during the five years 1900, '01, '02, '03, '04, cumulated into one alphabet for each year; that is, into five alphabets. This is planned to answer the demands of librarians, booksellers and others who wish this valuable material, in available shape, for classifying and describing and for permanent reference.

For the book dealer the second volume is a very useful record of book valuation. It gives in form for ready reference brief descriptive notices of the important books published during the period mentioned, describing concisely the contents of each work and explaining many titles which, in themselves, mean little or nothing or are misleading. For descriptive cataloging, a bibliographical work of this kind is almost priceless.

The two volumes are uniformly bound in half morocco. The price is $12.00 for both or $7.50 for either separately. The edition is limited, only 230 copies of the first volume and 110 of the second volume remaining unsold. We reserve the right to advance the price when the balance of either is reduced to 100 copies.

CROWELL'S THIN PAPER CLASSICS

Do Not Let Your Stock Run Short

The "thin paper" book is emphatically the book of the present and of the future

THE NEW YORK TIMES REVIEW says:—

"Thin paper, if it has not revolutionized the book trade, has certainly given it a 'boost.' From the old-time English three-volume novel, to the modern single volume edition of the greatest classic, is a long step, made possible by the use of thin paper.

"A recent issue of good books in cheap and convenient form due to this excellent thin paper is Crowell's Thin Paper Classics. The series is well selected, and contains several of the books that the world is willing to call 'the best,' all well printed—more than well printed; excellently printed—in large type on thin but opaque paper, so that though there may be from five to eight hundred pages in a volume, it is never too large to slip easily into one's overcoat pocket or muff. The books are bound in flexible leather, red, blue or dark green; and certainly there can be no more grateful present to a person who has to travel than one or more of the dainty volumes of this very attractive series."

And THE OUTLOOK says similarly:—

"All bookbuyers regard with pleasure the new edition of famous books in this now popular and extremely attractive form. It is a triumph of modern book-making. The books are well printed, with perfectly legible type and bound in flexible leather. Some or all would decidedly make an acceptable holiday present."
